HOW TO WEAR KEY LOOKS NOW

The fashion blogger Freddie Harrel, 29, wears the high waist trend

"My style is a mix of everything wrapped into one; mom jeans, suits, florals, dresses, heels, brogues. I always wear a high waist; I think it's so flattering for your body - it makes your hips and waist stand out. A lot of people feel that high-waisted is not for them because they are self-conscious about their middle, but I feel like the opposite is true."

STYLE TIP

A bold SUIT does all the work, so wear it with a SIMPLE top

TRY A STATEMENT SUIT

"I am obsessed with suits and love everything about this one, especially the rich mustard colour. The high-waisted trousers paired with a longline blazer create such a strong contrast and stop it from being too mannish. I've added a striped top to show that you can really wear anything with it because it's the suit that does the talking."

Mom JEANS will help define your WAIST

GET INTO MOM JEANS

"I think mom jeans are flattering on everyone, especially if you feel that your waist is not your strongest feature, because they create the illusion of definition. Everyone should have a quirky pair in their wardrobe, like these embroidered ones. Adding a voluminous cropped blouse is a great clash of shapes: it highlights your shoulders and waist."

MIX PATTERNS AND SHAPES

"I like to clash styles so I love this retro, sporty T-shirt with a super-feminine skirt. I like to play with contrasting shapes and fits - a loose top with a fitted skirt adds another dimension. Clashing prints is also really simple - you just need one colour to reconcile each element. Here it's the touch of yellow in the T-shirt, skirt and shoes that brings it all together. This is the perfect outfit for an evening out with friends. Add a blazer to smarten it up."
