HOW TO WEAR THE KEY LOOKS NOW

Emma Grede, 34, co-founder of the denim brand Good American, styles up summer jackets

"My personal style is pretty classic: I mostly wear black, white and denim, and I have the biggest collection of plain T-shirts and white shirts you could imagine. I love a good jacket, and I buy the same brands over and over again – Céline and Saint Laurent are my favourites."

BOMBER JACKET

"A bomber is a great day-to-night piece. I like the idea of wearing a gorgeous lacy dress with sneakers and a bomber. I always have to play things down a little bit – I can't do the whole dress, heels, hair, make-up thing. Something has to ground the outfit for me. I'm quite short, so this jacket hits me in the right places."

DENIM JACKET

"This has become a real hero in my wardrobe – it takes me through all sorts of looks. Right now I'm into an oversized vintage fit that I can just chuck over my shoulders and wear with pretty much anything. Paired with a silky, ruffled skirt and simple heels, it is the perfect smart work look for me. I feel really put together."

WHITE TUXEDO

"I'm all about this kind of jacket – a structured shoulder is super flattering. This is a staple outfit for me – sneakers, jeans and a sharp jacket – although it would also be great over a dress. It has become acceptable to wear jeans to work, so I can be in denim all the time, and putting on a good silk blouse makes it look as if you've made an effort, but it's still easy and comfortable to wear all day."
